To the student

If you are going to take the Cambridge First Certificate exam, you will find the tests in this book very helpful. They will help you practise a lot of the structures and language that you will need in the Use of English paper. Many of them also have useful information on what examiners are looking for.

There are two parts to the book:

The first part (sections 1–4) gives practice in the most important areas of language relevant to the exam as a whole. Sections 1–3 cover verb constructions such as phrasal verbs and verb + noun combinations; use of prepositions; and sentence construction. Section 4 deals with common problems, such as the use of make and do, some and any, and when to use the infinitive (do, to do) or the -ing form (doing).

The second part (sections 5-9) deals with particular tasks in the Use of English paper, namely:

- cloze texts with multiple choice to test knowledge of vocabulary
- cloze texts without multiple choice to test structural words and collocations (words that go together, such as make a promise, tell a lie, go to bed)
- sentence transformation
- error correction
- word building.

There are also two tests (59 and 60) which deal specifically with grammatical terminology, including the names of tenses.

There is a key at the back of the book so that you can check your answers.

You don't need to work through every test in this book. Instead, you can concentrate on those areas where you feel you need more practice.

Don't forget to keep a record of new items that you come across, and try to use these items as much as possible before the exam. In particular, we suggest that you don't just note down a new word or expression, but that you also write and learn a phrase containing it. For example, don't just write on purpose: put it in a sentence like I'm sorry I broke your glasses, but it was an accident: I didn't do it on purpose.

If you want to improve your vocabulary for FCE as well as your grammar, you might like to use the Penguin book which accompanies this one. It's called Test Your Vocabulary for FCE. There are several other titles in the Test Your series which you will also find useful, including Test Your Phrasal Verbs and Test Your Prepositions.

Good luck in the exam!

Verbs

When you are revising verbs, the things to concentrate on are:

Form

Think about which verbs take -s and which take -es, e.g. read-reads; watch-watches. Learn the irregular verbs: you can categorize them according to how they change, e.g., AAA (no change), as in put-put-put; ABC (three different forms), as in speak-spoke-spoken; ABA, as in come-came-come.

Tenses

Remember that the tense of a verb is not just about time, i.e., I did it yesterday, I will do it tomorrow; but also about our attitude to the event. For example, there is a difference between What did you do today? and What have you done today? The simple past asks about what a person did e.g. at work today, assuming that work is finished for today; the present perfect is asking what the person has done so far today and what effect that has on the present. Think, too, of the difference between He'll do it and He's going to do it; or What do you do? and What are you doing?

Verb phrases

Verbs are often in collocations, i.e., set expressions with other words, for example:

with nouns: to take place, to make fun of with adjectives: to turn red, to go sour, to run dry

The most common and most useful are probably phrasal verbs, for example:

with adverb to stand up, to go away with preposition to look for (something), to bump into (someone)

'What have you done today?'

1 Fill in the verbs

Choose the correct verb

Read through the sentences below, then decide which answer, A, B, C or D, best fits each space. There is an example at the beginning (0).

Choose the alternative that fits grammatically into the sentence.

D pretending

In this kind of test (multiple choice), all the alternatives (A, B, C, D) have similar meanings and are therefore easily confused, but only one fits grammatically. For example, in question 1 you cannot say He explained methat..., He said me that... or He reported me that... (You can only say He explained to me that ..., He said that ... [without me] and He reported to me that ...), so only He told me that ... is grammatically correct.

Some words can be either a preposition or an adverb, e.g. across, down, in, on, etc. Remember that the object will always follow a preposition, but may come between a verb and an adverb, as in get across the road (preposition) compared with get an idea across (adverb).

16	It's good to your appearance, but try not to be vain!
17	There are so many developments in computer technology nowadays, I just can't them all.
	Please everything I say, because I shall say it only once. Understood?
19	My daughter found it easy to other children, but my son was very shy and was mostly alone.
20	Our English teacher is nice because she praises us a lot, but most of the other teachers seem to everything we do.
21	You want cut-price DVDs? Then our bargain offers. At least 30% off list price!!

It is important to learn these expressions by heart, and in particular to be careful not to insert an article between verb and noun. For example, use the expression catch sight of and people will be impressed by your command of English, but if you say catch the sight of, it will spoil the effect!

Some of these compound prepositions are used in everyday speech, e.g., in favour of. However, many of them are formal written expressions, for which there is an everyday equivalent, e.g. A teacher is more likely to say I want to speak to you about your work rather than I want to speak to you with regard to your homework.

Prepositions frequently occur at the end of a sentence, as in Where are you from? or I don't know what the world is coming to. Nobody would say From where are you? or To what is the world coming? Similarly, people say Who are you talking about? rather than About whom are you talking? (although the latter is correct, of course).

Sentence construction

The two most important elements in sentence construction in English are sequence of tenses and word order.

• Sequence of tenses

The meaning changes depending on the tense used, e.g.:

If you hadn't given him the money, he wouldn't have gone to South America. (he's already gone)

71:

1.4

If you hadn't given him the money, he wouldn't be going to South America next week. (he hasn't gone yet)

I wish you wouldn't do that. (you are doing something I disapprove of)
I wish you hadn't done that (you did something I disapprove of)

Word order

It is clear that The dog bit the man is different from The man bit the dog, but what about the difference between [1] He carefully opened the box and [2] He opened the box carefully? or between [3] Let's meet on Friday at 12 o'clock and [4] Let's meet at 12 o'clock on Friday? Whatever comes at the beginning or end of the phrase (called front focus and end focus) is emphasised. So, sentence [1] simply states a fact, whereas [2] draws our attention to how he opened the box, i.e. carefully; sentence [3] draws your attention to the TIME (i.e. 12 o'clock), and sentence [4] highlights which DAY we should meet (i.e. Friday).

Position of adjectives and adverbs

Put the adjectives in the correct places and in the right order in the following sentences. There is an example at the beginning (0). She bought a handbag in the sale. (leather, brown) She brought a brown leather handbag in the sale. He bought a bunch of roses. (yellow, sweet-smelling) Ħ The nextdoor neighbour's cat has soft fur. (grey, lovely) 2 The hotel was owned by a businessman. (tall, German, middle-3 aged) They lived in a house. (three-bedroomed, semi-detached, brand new) 5 My brother loves sports cars. (red, Italian, fast) 6 In the middle of the room was a coffee table. (oval, superb, oak)

Where did you get this vase from? (old, magnificent, Japanese)

I love meals. (tasty, hot, Indian)

7

8

	He was wearing a jacket. (shabby, cream, old, linen)
	Outside the Town Hall was a statue. (marble, huge, triangular, black)
	Put the adverbs in the best places in the following sentences. There an example at the beginning (0).
	We have a lie-in on Sunday morning. (usually) We usually have a lie-in on Sunday morning.
	The children go riding on Saturdays. (sometimes)
	I was pretending. I wouldn't have chopped your finger off! (on really) Carol's daughter plays the violin. (beautifully)
]	My brother finishes work on Fridays. (nearly always, early)
	I don't go to the theatre. My sister, on the other hand, goes.

(still)

George hasn't done much work so he'll fail the exam. (probably)

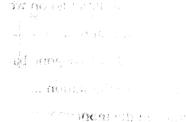

I disagree with you! Watching football live is better than watching it on TV. (completely, definitely)

'Where's Rose?'

'She's gone home.' (just)

'Is my omelette ready?' (yet)

'No, dear, I'm waiting for the hen to lay the eggs!' (still)

Adjectives usually go in this order:

1 Value 2 Size 3 Age/Temperature 4 Shape 5 Colour 6 Origin

7 Material

size

Rather than trying to remember that order (and it is unusual to have more than three adjectives together anyway), it is better to remember a few key phrases, e.g.

material

a beautiful old Chinese vase value age origin

a huge black metal box

cólour

Word order can change to place emphasis on some part of the sentence.g. I usually get up at six o'clock simply states a fact, but Usually, I get at six o'clock prepares us for a completion like ... but lately I have been getting up much later. Where no particular emphasis is required, the usuadverbial order is manner (how), place (where) and time (when), e.g. He slipped quietly out of the house just after midnight.

Smoking 'will kill one million voung people'

PROLONGED smoking will kill around one million British teenagers and children in middle age (0) _e__, says a report published yesterday.

A further one million will die of tobacco-related diseases in old age, (1) _____ at the Imperial Cancer Research Fund and the World Health Organisation. On present trends, 4-5 million young Britons (2)

Professor Richard Peto, of the ICRF, said that worldwide somebody (3) _____ which was already killing three million people each year, and the number was increasing.

'In most countries (4) _____. If current smoking patterns persist, then by the time the young smokers of today (5) _____ there will be about ten million deaths a year from tobacco - one every three seconds. Furthermore, young people continue to see misleading portrayals (6) _____ . It tells them that lighting up is acceptable. It is no surprise therefore that 90 per cent of smokers start when young.'

He argued that (7) _____ about the effects of prolonged smoking, because of the very long delay between cause and effect. The risk came decades later.

'If cigarette smokers start young and don't stop, about half will be killed by tobacco.' This means that the developing countries (8) _____, said Professor Peto.

Dr Alan Lopez of the World Health Organisation in Geneva, added: 'The WHO has called on governments everywhere to protect children from (9) _____. The sooner tobacco advertising is banned, the more lives will be saved.'

Professor Sir Richard Doll - one of the two people (10) ____ forty years ago - urged the Government to increase tax on cigarettes and ban advertising.

'It is quite incredible they don't do it. Here you have something that (11) ____ and people are being encouraged to do it. It is immoral, there is no other word for it.'

Sources of confusion (similar words and structures)

There are several causes of confusion, usually because of interference from our mother tongue:

- One word in English, for two words in another language, e.g. be in English, ser and estar in Spanish.
- Two words in English for one word in another language, e.g. make and do in English, fare in Italian.
- The same idea expressed in different ways in the two languages, e.g., I read a book last night could be chital or prochital in Russian depending on whether I just read part of it or read the whole book from cover to cover.
- False friends (faux amis in French), that is, words which are similar in appearance but which mean something different or are used in a different way: eventual (English) is not the same as eventual (German); control (English) is not the same as controllare (Italian); office (English) is not the same as ofis (Turkish) and so on.
- Presence or absence of grammatical features, e.g. the definite article (the) and when to omit it. This is a nightmare for people whose language does not have a definite article (e.g. Russian, Turkish), or who have something very like the English definite article, but who use it very differently (e.g.
 Arabic).
- Singular and plural differences. For example, people and police are plural in English but singular in many other languages. Information and advice are singular in English, but plural in many other languages.

The simple rule that some is used with positive statements, and any is used with negatives is a good one: I need some money, I haven't got any money.

Remember that words like hardly and scarcely are also possible. I possessly

Remember that words like hardly and scarcely are also negative: I scarcely had any time left to eat anything.

In questions, we use any if we are just asking for information: Is there any cake left? But sometimes a question is really an invitation or a request, in which case we would probably use some, as in Would you like some more tea? Would somebody please help me load the car?

Make/do + noun expressions

Why do we say make a mistake but do your homework? Make has the idea of creating (producing) something which didn't exist before; do has the idea of performing an action on something which already exists. But does this help you to understand why we say make the bed and do business? In the end, it is easier just to memorise the whole expression! And if you are not sure, use make.

Use of English Part 1 Cloze with multiple choice

In the examination ...

- Parts 1 and 2 in the Use of English paper consist of a text with gaps (missing words). In Part 1, you are offered four alternatives from which to choose the one that fits in the gap. Mostly all the alternatives fit grammatically, but only one makes sense. (A sentence such as I like to wear an elephant on my head. is grammatically correct, but it makes no sense). You need therefore to look carefully at the meaning of the whole sentence to see which word makes sense.
- Beware of false friends! Examiners love to test words like control, pretend and actual, because these words look like words in other languages, but mean something different.

'The policeman is trying to control the traffic.'

First of all, there is, in some people, a moderate genetic predisposition to be happy: in other words, happiness (2) in families. And happiness seems to correlate quite (3) with the main dimensions of personality: extroverts are generally happier, neurotics are less so.
Second, people often (4) good social relations as a reason for their happiness. THE NEW CHINA

All is not well in the state of China. Most people who (0)A an interest in China know that, in the days when all industry was
(1) by the state, the workers had their basic needs taken care of. They did not (2) much, but they could be sure of a house or flat, health care, education and a pension.
This was the 'iron rice-bowl'. But what happens when the bowl breaks, as is happening now with the (3) of private industry and the end of the welfare state?
The trend is clear. In some provinces, fewer than half the workers are now (4) by the state. By the end of the next decade, at least a quarter of China's (5) will be privately or self employed.
When this happens, China will need to look for ways of replacing state welfare.
Take housing. Foreign companies increasingly (6) housing in order to attract the workers they want. As to health care, the end of free medicine is already (7) Under the old system, if a state worker needed (8), the hospital simply sent the bill to his factory. Today, state firms (9) part of the fee from a worker's pay.
Some even (10) private medical insurance. (11) pensions are concerned, personal pensions, bought through life insurance companies, are said to be growing in number by 25% a year.
Many towns are experimenting with pooled pension funds from all businesses, state and private, with workers (12) about two percent of their income. This (13) well in places with lots of young people and high growth, but in areas of declining economy, pooling means more people getting less.

Use of English Part 2 Cloze with gaps

In the examination ...

In this part, there are gaps but no alternatives are given. You have to find a word that (a) fits grammatically (b) makes sense. In making your choice of the word to go in the gap, check first that it makes sense; and secondly that it is grammatically correct.

Note that, although the examiners try to make sure that there is only one possibility, there may sometimes be more than one solution.

Many of the words tested are 'structural' words like auxiliary verbs, modals, articles and prepositions.

This is also the place where 'collocations' are tested, that is, fixed expressions such as make fun of, fall in love with, by means of, look down on.

Use of English Part Error correction

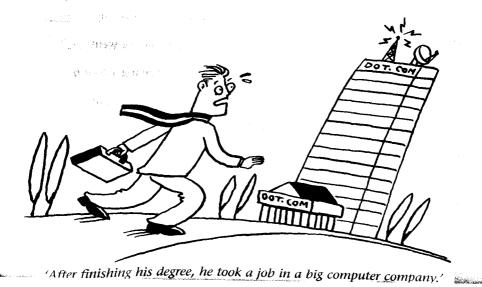

In the examination ...

The errors are usually the 'little words' like prepositions, verbs and adverbs. The examiners have one or two favourite tricks, especially mixing up two expressions by adding a word which belongs to the word before it, but not to the word after it.

A few examples:

- After finishing my degree, I took out a job in a big computer company.
 Here, the confusion is between the verb take out and the expression take a job.
- I will have no any difficulty.
 Here the confusion is between have no difficulty and not have any difficulty, made even more confusing by the possibility of not any difficulty (although not in this context).
- My teacher will be too pleased to support my application.
 Here the confusion is between My teacher will be pleased to ... and My teacher will be only too pleased to ...

The only way to beat the examiner is by very careful reading of ALL the words, especially the 'little words'.

Read the text below and look carefully at each line. Some of the lines are correct, and some have a word which should not be there. If a line is correct put a tick () after it. If a line has a word which should not be there, write the word after it. There are two examples at the beginning (0 and 00).

A GLASS OF ORANGE JUICE

U	The train was crowded and I as couldn't find anywhere to
00	sit. So, after searching every compartment for an empty
1	seat without the success, I decided to pop along to
2	the refreshment car, where you can usually get something up to
3	drink and a bite to eat with. Even here, all the seats were taken,	:
4	so I just had to stand at the bar. The only other person was
5	standing at the bar was a strange-looking man wearing an
6	enormous overcoat. This struck at me as very peculiar,
7	because that it was a very hot day. He appeared to be drinking
8	a glass of orange juice, but the funny thing about was that he
9	kept both his hands tightly round the glass as if he was being
10	afraid that someone might want steal it. After a while, he went
11	out, presumably for to go to the toilet, but before leaving,
12	he scribbled something on a piece of paper and left it
13	beside the glass, in which was still half full.
14	The note said: 'Do you not drink my orange juice, I have
15	dipped my fingers in it.' Smiling to myself, I picked up
16	the note, wrote it underneath 'So have I', and slipped

A MEAL TO REMEMBER

0	A German couple who went to abroad	to
00	for a holiday have returned without their pet
1	poodle, Greta, following after a very traumatic
2	experience in a restaurant there.
3	They were out dining one evening and, as so
4	usual, had their pet poodle with them. Just
5	after when they had ordered their meal, the dog
6	started to whine, so that they asked a waiter
7	come over to their table and pointed to the
8	poodle while they made an eating motions to
9	show they wanted it to be fed.
10	Eventually as the waiter appeared to understand
11	and took Greta off into the kitchen. About after
12	an hour later, he came back with their main dish
13	and when they picked up inside the silver lid they
14	found out their poodle roasted inside, garnished
15	with pepper, sauce and vegetables. The
16	couple, suffering from emotional shock, have
17	decided for to return to Hamburg immediately.

A THANK YOU LETTER

Dear Chris,

, O	I am writing to thank you for the
00	wonderful birthday present you sent for me.	for
1	It was just what I wanted! Molly she says
2	you shouldn't have spent so much of money
3	but, like me, she really likes the painting.
4	It will looks very nice above the fireplace.
5	The birthday party it went off quite well.
6	There were about fifteen of us altogether
7	that including my parents and Molly's dad.
8	We eventually got to the bed at about 2 o'clock
9	in the morning! We were really tired!
10	When are we going to see you, Alice and the kids
11	again? It's been over a year now since then you
12	were last here. Why don't you try come down for
13	the weekend soon? You know everyone would love
14	for to see you again and I know you and I will
15	not have lots and lots to talk about!
² 16	Write soon and I look very forward to seeing you again. With best wishes,

AN EMBARRASSING MOMENT

0	One of my most embarrassing moments happened
00	when ever I went for an interview for a job as receptionist	ever
1	in a large hotel in Brighton. I had driven it there and, because
2	of the traffic and the difficulty of finding the hotel, I was slightly
3	late. I had just reached for the hotel car park, and was about
4	to reverse into a parking space when a man in a big, white
5	Mercedes drove into it. This is made me really angry so
6	I wound down the window and swore at him, but as he just
7	ignored me and walked away, to which made me even madder.
8	To make matters worse, the car park was full, so far I had to wait
9	another ten minutes before then I found an empty parking space.
10	By this time, I was over a quarter of an hour late for the interview,
11	so I have rushed to the manager's office, knocked on the door
12	and walked in. When the manager looked me up, I nearly died:
13	it was the same man that I had sworn at in the car park – he the
14	one who had taken off my parking space. Happily, we both saw
15	the funny side of things and if I got the job, but on one condition:
16	that I promised never to swear at the guests!

THE LADY VANISHES

0	In 1889, an Englishwoman and her daughter, on a visit
00	to the Great Exhibition in Paris, checked up into one of the	ир
1	most expensive hotels there. Each they had her own room. The
2	daughter wanted to have take in the sights and sounds of the
3	city immediately but her mother, tired after the trip, wanted to
4	sleep. The girl accordingly she went out alone, strolled the
5	Champs Elysées and saw the Eiffel Tower. When has she
6	returned to her mother's room for six hours later, she found it
7	empty. There was no sign of her mother ever having been there.
8	When she asked the manager he insisted on that no one at the
9	hotel had seen her or her mother to check in. The mother had
10	disappeared away! The desperate girl searched for weeks
11	before that finally returning to England. She died ten years later
12	in a mental hospital. So that what was the explanation? After the
13	daughter had been gone sightseeing, her mother had complained
14	to the hotel doctor that she felt ill. It turned out so that she
15	had contracted the plague! Hotel staff were instructed but not to
16	say a word to anyone about it, in case visitors panicked and left the city. No one knows what happened to the mother.

THE THREE-LEGGED CHICKEN

0	A man was travelling on the freeway at about 70 miles an hour
00	when he was overtaken by a chicken running at the speed in	the
1	the fast lane. It was a huge bird like, about the size of a camel, and it
2	was doing at least a hundred ones! The most amazing thing about it
3	was that it had three legs. The man increased in his speed to try to
4	catch up with the three-legged chicken, but the bird ran more faster
5	than ever. Finally, it left the freeway, went through a farmyard and
6	disappeared across a field. The motorist, who had been followed
7	the chicken, stopped his car, got out of and went over to speak to a
8	farmer, who had also watched the chicken to run through his farm,
9	across the field and out of the sight. The motorist listened in amazement
10	as the farmer explained that he bred these giant chickens.
11;	'But why do you want me to breed chickens with three legs?'
12	asked the bewildered motorist. 'Oh, it's very simple. I am really prefer
13	chicken leg, my wife likes the leg best too, and my son also prefers
14	chicken leg, so it seemed the easiest way for to satisfy all three of
15	us.' The motorist thought about for a moment. 'I see. So, tell me
16	something. What do they taste like?' 'I don't know it,' the farmer replied sadly, 'We've never managed to catch one yet!'

Use of English Part 5 World building

In the examination ...

This part of the Use of English paper tests your knowledge of affixes, the means by which words are changed into other related words. There are two kinds of affixes:

prefixes are added to the front of words, e.g., able \rightarrow enable, happy \rightarrow unhappy suffixes are added to the end of words, e.g., wide \rightarrow width, wise \rightarrow wisdom, offend \rightarrow offensive.

Prefixes

positive to negative: happy-unhappy; satisfied-dissatisfied; eligible-ineligible verbs: large-enlarge, tell-foretell, charge-overcharge

Suffixes

verb-noun:

approve-approval, suspect-suspicion, speak-speech

noun-adjective:

hope-hopeful, noise-noisy

verb-adjective:

widen-wide, repeat-repetitive adjective-noun:

long-length, mad-madness, wise-wisdom

verb-adjective:

falsify-false

• Traps to beware of:

Spelling

Very often the base word changes when the affix is added, as in wide – width, satisfy – satisfactory

-ible or -able

If in doubt, use -able. The rule of thumb is that if the root is a recognisable noun or verb, the adjective will end in -able: rely - reliable, value - valuable (capable and probable are exceptions).

The double change

You may have to make more than one change to the base word, e.g. the meaning of the sentence requires not satisfactory but unsatisfactory, which you have to form from the base word SATISFY.

Note: in the exam, correct spelling is required.

Read the text below and use the word given in capitals at the end of each line to form a word that fits in the space in the same line. There is an example at the beginning (0).

Grammatical terms

Traditionally, the language is divided into nouns, pronouns, verbs, adjectives, adverbs, prepositions and conjunctions. Knowing the grammatical terms is not the same thing as knowing the language, just as knowing about the language is not the same thing as being able to use the language. Still, it helps sometimes to know these grammatical terms if you want to talk about the language, for example, to give or listen to an explanation of a structure.

The terms tested here are ones that are widely used by teachers and students all over the world, but you may come across others. For example, what most call the past perfect (I had done) is called the pluperfect by some others.

Other terms have been introduced which, though useful, are not widely known. For example, determiners (a, the, this, that, etc.), distributives (each, every, all, etc.), quantifiers (much, many, etc.). We have not tested these, but you may come across them in more modern grammars.
